Susan Crowley

Susan Crowley, a Class A member of the LPGA, has more than thirteen years experience teaching and club fitting players of all levels. Susan started playing golf at age 6, with her parents. She has played on the AJGA junior tour, Collegiate Tour, and then furthered her playing career at the University of South Carolina–Coastal.

Susan feels lucky to be in the golf business and to teach the game that has given her so many opportunities. She enjoys teaching men, women, and junior players of all levels. Her goal is to help the student improve and have fun in the process.

Susan works for the LPGA as a National Evaluator and Educator for aspiring LPGA instructors. She also has the distinction of being named one of the top ten Teaching Professionals in Northern California by Nor Cal Golf Guide.

She has created two special programs that are designed to meet the needs of women players. Making the game of Golf fun, is her first priority.
